

Segmented Controls

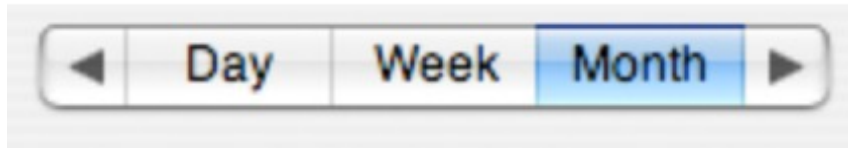

Segmented Controls

- A segmented control displays a list of options that a user can choose from.
- Each segment sort of looks like and behaves like a radio button
- The segments remains “pressed” even after the user selects the control.

Segmented Controls

- They do not have to all be of the same type: for example, you can mix text and images.

- It is up to you to ensure the button size is large enough to fit the text or image.